

Amateur Radio Club in Meet

CD Director Makes Brief Talk

The Hancock Amateur Radio Club held its regular monthly meeting recently with 15 present. The meeting was opened with a short talk by Sam Hughes, Civil Defense Director for Hancock County, about the potentialities of the assistance that the club can give to Civil Defense in case a disaster strikes.

President Howard Grubbs (W9DZC) and Charles Haley (K9HWN) gave a short report on their attendance at the amateur get-together in Dayton, Ohio, over the weekend of May 9th. This proved to be very interesting and informative.

Phil Macy (W9ATG) gave a report on the progress of his code and theory classes and advised that he has given seven or eight examinations in the past couple of months. This class affords an excellent opportunity for those interested in becoming radio amateurs to learn the fundamentals of radio and to obtain their licenses. It is open to all interested persons of any age and of either sex. The class meets each Tuesday at 7 p.m. (EST) at Phil's home, 77 Jefferson Blvd., Greenfield.

The visitor this month was Walter Foutch (W9CKX) of Pendleton. Walt is chief radio operator for the Pendleton Post of the Indiana State Police.

The next meeting will be held Monday night, June 8, at the Hoosier Soft Water Co., building at 25 East Pierson, in Greenfield. This meeting will be taken up by the annual election of officers, so it is important for all members to be there.
